

How to Support Someone in Recovery from Addiction

- Don't judge. Many people in recovery feel judged by their family and friends. Accept them for who they are and refrain from criticism and negativity.
- Be patient. Recovery is a long, complicated process. People often have setbacks. It's important for them to know that you still support them when things get tough.
- Reinforce that recovery is possible. Like other chronic diseases, people can manage addictions successfully.
- Actively Listen. Take notice of your loved one's victories and struggles.
- Encourage healthy habits. Cooking, exercising and playing games are all positive, substance-free activities you can do with a person in recovery.
- Suggest a support group. Support groups allow people in recovery to interact with and receive encouragement from others who struggle with addiction.
- Continue to offer encouragement and support. Emphasize that it takes a lot of courage to get help for an addiction.
- Take care of yourself. Join a support group for friends and families of people with addictions to feel less alone.
